

The Ardmore Legacy an expression of Peated Malts of Distinction

Drying malting barley over peat fire is an ancient tradition and is what adds the depth, richness and flavor to peated single malts. Beam Suntory India has launched Peated Malts of Distinction expression The Ardmore Legacy and Bowmore 12 year old in addition to already marketed legend Laphroaig 10 year old.

An unrivalled collection of peated malt whiskies, called Peated Malts of Distinction, which offers a scaled selection of diverse flavored peat smoked Single Malt Whiskies to satisfy an array of consumer's tastes.

The Ardmore Legacy is the only Highland peated single malt whisky and plays an important role within the Beam Suntory portfolio. It has an easy drinking flavor profile as well as an accessible price point which positions the brand as the entry point to peated single malts.

The idea is to think of The Ardmore as more than a whisky. It is a place, a journey and an opportunity to uncover the undefined. In terms of flavor, it is a whisky that is honest, complex as well as unique.

Colour: Light golden

Nose: Heather Honey with hints of cinnamon and toffee bonbon. Very subtle hints of peat smoke

Palate: Creamy vanilla spice gives way to more overt smoky charcoal notes, especially with the addition of water. Smoke doesn't dominate and is balanced by the sweet honey and spice flavours

Finish: Full bodied, silky mouth feel with a dry, tangy and lingering aftertaste, coupled with delicious spice notes

Bowmore 12 year old has a deeper flavor profile and is aimed to be the next stage in the malt journey, as an alternate to the Glens. The consumer is typically in his 40s, middle class and educated. He has a good knowledge of single malts and sees them as a more sophisticated and aspirational drink.
